Our software powers the best school websites in the world!

Top Schools in America Choose Educational Networks for Their Websites!

On November 29, 2007, US News and World Report published a list of America's best high schools. US News collaborated with Schoolmatters.com, an affiliate of Standard and Poor's, to evaluate and rank more than 18,000 high schools throughout the United States. The best hundred were selected to receive gold medal status. Educational Networks is proud to announce that eleven of these highest-ranking institutions use its software SchoolSitePro to power their school websites, making it by far the single most popular Content Management System among these schools.
